THE MAIN STREET BRIDGE

Yesterday morning Mayor Scabright

ppointed Messrs. W. A. Wilson, Julius

Pollock and W. H. Haller, of the First

Brauch, to act with Messrs. Oscar Seeley, A. C. Harrell and Charles Brandfass, o the Second Branch, who were appointed at the regular meeting of Council held Tuesday night, as a conference commit-tee in the matter of the proposed bridge over the creek at Main street. The un-derstanding is that while this committee will lose no time in gotting to work on the questions that have been referred to it, it will at the same time give a careful consideration to all the points contained therein, and when it makes its report. World's Fair boomers, arrived yesterday from Washington. He had been at the National Capital helping to whoop things for the Lake City. He is on his way back with his share of several fine seciety locks dangling at his belt.

"Got it!" exclaimed Mr. Parks, "of course we got it. We fought harder for it than anybody else because we needed it is worse than anybody else. We had to disappointment to our people if we had missed the prize. Are we going to be treatly in time? Of course we are, If anybody can Chicago can. As soon as the bill passes finally we shall decide on the site. We may I have a little fight among ourselves for that, but it won't be savage, I twill soon be over, and then up go the buildings. I want to say that West Virginia is entitled to a seat at the first table. She helped us when we needed belon and when it told. The passes of While nearly every one has been con-some who mare with all. Whison as to the manner in which the bridge should be paid for, and included among those who so differ are many good business men whose judgment has always been considered sound and practicable. Mr. Wilson's plan, it will be remembered, is to have the improvement paid for out of this year's revenues. His resolution instructs the Finance Committee to set aside $55,000 in the annual appropriation ordinance to be drafted for this year to a pay for the bridge. It was on the adoption of this resolution, when it came up in the Second Branch for a concurrence in the action of the First, that a committee of conference was called for.

The plan proposed by those who do not favor paying for the improvement out of this year's revenues is that a loan of $50,000 be made, payable in eix years, $10,000 of bonds to be redeemed each year; the bonds to be five per cents and year; the bonds to be five per cents and not subject to site tawait.

so of $50,000 be made, payable in six years, $10,000 of bonds to be redeemed each year; the bonds to be five per cents and not subject to city taxation. It is not claimed that these bonds could be sold at any premium, but it is claimed that they would be readily taken up as five per cents. The idea of those who would create a loan in order to pay for the bridge is that there shall be no interprovement, in the way of brick paving that has been going on for the past six years. The bond plan of payment is urged principally by those who live in portions of the city that have not received as much needed improvements as other portions have, and who do not want to be cut off without any work being done this year. One great objection that attaches to the necessity of the city's debt, is the bother and worry of the election that would have to be held. A surprising feature about the bridge talk heard in the city yesterday was the number of former stone bridge advocates who frankly confessed that previous to tatic heard in the city yesterday was the number of former stone bridge advocates who frankly confessed that previous to learning from Mr. Seeley's statements and figures they had never thought of a steel bridge being constructed in the manner detailed by Mr. Seeley; they had never thought of a steel bridge other than a light, flimey, shaky affair.

LEE HELD TO COURT

For the Killing of Thomas Thoman at West Wheeling Law Saturday.

William Lee, the man who is charged with having killed Thomas Thornton at Mrs. Selbry's boarding house in West Wheeling last Saturday evening, was given a preliminary hearing yesterday before Mayor Mitchell at Bridgeport. The State was represented by Mr. George M'Kee and Mr. George Duncan appeared for the defense. Mayor Mitchell after the aring the evidence decided to hold Lee in the sum of $1,000 and not being able. LEE HELD TO COURT Ither iver bank and on the land so leveled, the big round house and shops will be built. The round house will have accommodations for fifty or sixty locomotives at one time, and the shops will be correspondingly large. The establishment of the round house and shops at this point practically means that a town will be started near thero or less Benwood's population will be very materially increased for it will require a small army of men to man such a plant as is contemplated. When this work is completed, which will be in the near finture for as soon as the land now in dispute is acquired the work will be pushed forward rapidly, the headquarters of the machinist repair forces of the fourth division, main line, the Newark-Bellaire division of the Central Ohio, the Hempfield and possibly two or three others will probably be at Benwood. the main the same in effect as that which has already been princed regarding Thornton's sudden and peculiar death. There still remain a flew, however, who cling to the stone bridge, but it is simply because they refuse to be convinced that their scheme is a wildly extravagant and foolish one, and it may be added, an almost impracticable one.

While nearly every one has been converted to the steel bridge idea there are some who differ with Mr. Wilson as to the manner in which the bridge should be paid for, and included among those who so differ are many good business men whose judgment has always been considered sound and practicable.
